"TAKE THAT STEP"

(A Song of the Wandering Life)

(Verse 1 – The Old Traveler Speaks)

I've walked these roads since I was young,
Chased the setting sun just for fun.
Never had a permanent place to stay,
Just a pair of boots and an open way.

Some say, "Boy, you need a home,"
But I was born on a wagon, destined to roam.
A roof ain't nothing but a cage to me,
The sky's my ceiling, open and free.

(Chorus – The Call to Wander)

So take that step, don't look behind,
Leave your worries, free your mind.
The world's too big, the time's too small,
You have itchy feet, so heed the call.
Go on, set out—find what's true,
The whole world is waiting just for you.

(Verse 2 – The Lessons of the Road)

Met a prospector in a desert town,
Said, “Gold don’t shine when no one’s around.”
Met a sailor by the northern sea,
Said, got to be traveling, if you want to be free.

Every place, a tale to tell,
Every mile, truth from wisdom’s well.
Ain’t no map can show the way,
You learn by walking day by day.

(Chorus – The Call to Wander)

So take that step, don’t look behind,
Leave your worries, free your mind.
The world’s too big, the time’s too small,
You have itchy feet, so heed the call.
Go on, set out—find what’s true,
The whole world is waiting just for you.

(Bridge – The Traveler's Truth)

Don't fear the dark, don't fear the rain,
Every storm clears the way again.
Empty pursuits, is like carrying heavy stone,
Better to travel, even if you walk alone.

(Final Chorus – The Last Invitation)

So take that step, don't look behind,
Leave your worries, free your mind.
The world's too big, the time's too small,
You have itchy feet, so heed the call.
Go on, set out—find what's true,
The whole world is waiting just for you.

(Outro – The Wanderer Walks On)

I'll be gone when the morning comes,
Chasing down another sun.
Maybe I'll see you on the way,
But if you stay—well, that's okay.
